Some trees don’t just stand. They anchor the world.

Some notice you noticing them.

And the sky writes its own quiet commentary above them.